
Popular Kitchen Cabinets

Contributed by Bennette
Friday, 12 September 2008

Selecting cabinets for your kitchen can be an overwhelming and time consuming process. Taking the time to do your research upfront will pay off in the long run with price, selection and quality. Kitchen cabinets can be the largest single investment that you'll spend in kitchen so why not shop around to find the style, accessories and features that you desire? As a Houston kitchen remodeling company we suggest to our customers to make a list of things that they must have before purchasing their new cabinets. Did you know that maple and oak woods are 2 very popular cabinets choices used in Texas kitchens? Here's why.

Maple cabinets can be stained or glazed and work well with a variety of different styles and decor in many kitchens. It is durable and selected often because of its smooth wood and even grain. Maple is sensitive when exposed to light and may yellow slightly in color over a period of time.

Oak cabinets are popular because of their durability, range in wood color, grain patterns and knots. Opting for unfinished oak and staining it yourself, will allow you to create a unique custom look in your kitchen. Oak cabinets are versatile and will compliment a modern or country decor.